

New Safety Resources Available Online

Accidents happen, but there are things you can do to lower the frequency and severity of accidents and injuries at your practice. The AAHA Business Insurance Program offers safety and loss control resources to help you avoid accidents and control claim costs when losses do occur. These include web-based resources from insurance carriers such as disaster planning and recovery guides, webinars, and educational white papers. And we are pleased to announce our newest risk management feature for program participants like you—twelve complimentary safety posters (see the back-side for details), which you can download and print for your practice.

In addition to risk management resources, the AAHA Business Insurance Program can help you address many of your veterinary business exposures such as your property and equipment, your employees and their safety, and your clients and vendors who pass in and out of your doors everyday. We can also provide bonds (ERISA, Notary, etc) and builder's risk insurance for any construction work. You cannot avoid all of the risks inherent in doing business; however, you can take action to lower these risks. A comprehensive insurance portfolio, underwritten by leading insurance carriers, can help you transfer many of these risks so you and your team can focus on the primary goal of your practice—providing high-quality veterinary medicine. Call 866-380-AAHA (2242) for a free quote of your entire business insurance portfolio or complete and return the enclosed application. You may also apply online at www.aahainsurance.org.

Why Do I Need Flood Insurance?

Even if you've never experienced flood damage at your home or veterinary practice, you're still susceptible. Flood risk isn't just based on history, it's also based on rainfall, river-flow and tidal-surge data, topography, flood-control measures, and changes due to building and development.

Flood damage can be caused by rain or snow, contrary to the preconception that only warmer coastal areas are at risk. Also, construction and development can change natural drainage paths and create new flood risks, making areas unaccustomed to flooding susceptible to it. Just about everyone is at some risk for flood damage.

Call the AAHA Business Insurance Program today at 866-380-AAHA (2242) for a flood quotation.
